AFFAIRS AT THE NAVY YARD

WORK PRACTICALLY AT A STANDSTILL FOR THE PRESENT.

INTERESTING PROBLEMS OF NAVAL POLITICS-MORE MEN AND MONEY NEEDED-MORE

CHANGES SAID TO BE CON-TEMPLATED

Little actual work in the way of repairs is being done in the yard at present, except the building of a new spar deck on the training-ship Alliance, as with the exception of the New-York and the Fern there are no members of the North Atlantic Squadron at the yard. Naval politics has, next to the fire in the New-York's coal bunkers, been the most fruitful topic of conversation, and many are the speculations indulped in by officers as to what will be the outcome of the present state of affairs. The personnel at the yard is likely to be changed considerably within the next few weeks, and alof the civil establishment employes, the chief clerk in the Department of Yards and Docks and some minor members of the clerical forces their places, with rumors of more changes on the slate. Much interest naturally entres in the retirement of Captain Schley from the command of the flagship and his assignment to duty with the Lighthouse Board, and the transfer of Captain Silas Casey, of the receiving ship Vermont, to the command of the cruiser. This, with the coming promotion of Commodore Sicard, the yard's commandant, which will follow the retirement of Rear Admiral Walker, and the possibility of the assignment of acting Rear Admiral Bunce to the command of the station are topics about which there

The release of Captain Sch'ey from sea duty brings an interesting point into the field. His inst shore service was as inspector of the Third Lighthouse District, which includes the waters of the Sound and the approaches to New-York Harbor, and in this place he acquitted himself to the entire satisfaction of the seagoing world and the people whose business is with ships. The retirement of Admiral Walker leaves the place of Chairman of the Lighthouse Board vacant. This is one of the most important of shore assignments in connection with the Navy Department, and the anly one in which could be regarded as exceeding it in importance to Navigation. This latter post also becomes vacant in April, on the retirement of Admiral Ramsay, and its incumbent is the connecting link between the personnel of the Navy and the

SOME POSSIBLE COMPLICATIONS.

One of the naval people who keeps a close watch on affairs said yesterday, in speaking of the complications involved in the canvass for the vacant places: "There is one thing to be considered, and that is that the head of the Light-house Board should be a man who is thoroughly conversant with its duties, and in whom the martilime world will have the utmost confidence. All this talk about the War Department capturing the place is foolish. It belongs of right to the Navy, and should be kept there. The War per ple have enough to attend to without endeavorple have enough to attend to without endeavorple have enough to attend to without endeavorple have enough to attend to a the retiring Admirals was to be boomed for Assistant Secretary to the Navy will fall through, as otherwise to the Navy will fall through, as otherwise to the Navy will fall through, as otherwise to the Assistant Secretary would mean a perpetuation for another term of a little ring which has had more to say in naval matters than has been of benefit to the service.

"Aside from the question of law involved in the appointment of a retired naval officer." If the Assistant Secretary would make a hore with the Assistant Secretary would make a three-cornered block which would sadly interfere with the dominance of Secretary Long. If the people who have the say are wise they will select one of the many good men available for the Navigation Bureau, and put Schley at the head of the Lighthouse Board, where he belongs by right of knowledge and interest."

MORE MEN AND MONEY NEEDED.

Searcity of money and men are the leading complaints heard at the present time from them in charge of the ships and the shops. In the search of the ships and the shops. In the search of many dorse the per time from them in charge of the ships and the shops. In the search of many dorse the ships and the shops. In the search of many dorse the ships and the shops. In the search of many dorse the ships and the shops. In the search of many dorse the ships and the shops. In the search of many dorse the ships and the vacant plores: "There is one thing to be con sidered, and that is that the head of the Light-

it is risky business to undertake work of any magnitude, and it is intimated that this has something to do with the fact that the ships off Something to do with the fact that this has Tompkinsville are not ordered up to the yard. The Iowa is expected at the yard by the first of next month, but just what will be done with her is a conundrum. The big drydock is still waiting for the Puritan, although there is some talk of sending the New-York in as a test in case the monitor does not come to the yard within a reasonable time, and everything electronic area. monitor does not come to the yard within a rea-sonable time, and everything else seems to be in sonable time, and everything else seems to be in a waiting stage.

The appropriation bill calls for the immediate availability of $25,000 for the completion of the flushing culverts in the new causeway between the mainland of the yard and the cob dock, and while it is expected that work will begin in a few days there is already a feeling that a big mistake has been made in allowing the culverts to be built. The peculiar formation of the Wallabout Channel and the Cob Dock results in the formation of an eddy near the point of the dock. formation of an eddy near the point of the dock, which brings in on the flood tide a vast amount of sewage from the outlets of the Brooklyn city of sewage from the outlets of the Brooklyn city system in that neighborhood, and there is grave fear now that the accumulation of filth will not only endanger the health of the men in the yard and the marine barracks, but will have a bad effect on any ships which may be tied up there. This eddy spoken of, while on the ebb-tide decreasing, does not have the scouring and cleansing effect which is needed for the removal of the sediment brought in with the flood, and already calculations are being made as to the amount of dreding which will be required to keep the channel free for the passage of large ships to the new dry dock.

TWO SANITARY IMPROVEMENTS. One item in the bill will go far toward improving the sanitary arrangements of the yard. It is that devoting $18,000 to the construction of latrines, and another is that devoting $10,000 to the construction of a sewer from the coal dock to Clinton-ave. Both these improvements have been needed for a long time, and the former will be especially pleasing to those whose business has called them along the quay wall west of the landing place of the Cob Dock ferry.

PARK DEPARTMENT WORK.

A NEW SIDEWALK TO BE PROVIDED ON EASTERN PARKWAY-IMPROVING INSTITUTE PARK. Some improvements worthy of special mention have been determined on by the Park Department and will be at once carried into effect. They appertain less to Prospect Park itself than to some of the other works under the direction of Park Commissioner Dettmer. A week or two ago it was de ided by the City Works Department to carry a sidewalk along the Mount Prospect Reservoir to the limit of the reservoir grounds. Previously the walk ran only to the entrance to the water tower. the Brooklyn Institute, which had made plans to lay a walk in front of the museum property, be-tween the reservoir and Washington-ave. Both these things are being done in anticipation of the early completion of the museum building, and the new walk will enable people going by the Flatbush-ave, and Vanderbilt-ave, cars to reach the museum without getting into the mud on a rainy called to the matter, the Eastern Parkway being under their control, and yesterday arrangements were completed for the laying of a walk on the outh side of the parkway from Washington-ave. to Nostrand-ave, for the accommodation of people going to the museum by the Nostrand-ave., Rogers-ave, and Franklin-ave, lines of trolley cars. CAPTAIN RITTER CELEBRATED HIS 82D BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY IN PEACE.

AFTER A PERIOD OF SERVICE DATING BACK TO 1845. HE IS LIVING OUT HIS DAYS IN THE EMPLOY OF THE CITY-A VET-ERAN OF THREE WARS. Captain John C. Ritter, who last Tuesday celebrated in a quiet way his eighty-second birthday anniversary, is the oldest living gunner of the United States Navy, having served on the frigate Constitution. Mr. Ritter is a clerk in the Bureau of Taxes and Assessments in the Controller's office.

and his fellow clerks presented to him a beautiful bouquet of flowers, with an expression of their best General Lewis M. Peck, formerly colonel of the 173d Regiment of Volunteers, presented the flowers with a few appropriate remarks. Edward G. Creamer, formerly of the lat New-York Mounted Rifles, read a poem. For forty-eight years of peace and war Mr. Ritter was a seafaring man. He is a veteran of the Mexi-

York City, on March 9, 1815. He attended a pay school in the city of his lirth until he was teen years old. Then he went to sea, and was connected with the merchant marine for some years, rounding the Horn in 1832-33. In 1842 he entered the Navy as a master's mate on the United States steamer Mississippi, his warrant being dated September 13, 1865. This was a first-class steamer, made of wood, of course. It was lost in the Mississippi River in the war. After a brief service on the brig Somers, Mr. Ritter was appointed gunner of the ship St. Mary's, and was on board at her launch ing in Washington, in 1844. During the Mexican war the fleet of which the St. Mary's was a member was commanded by Commodore Corner, and afterward by Commodore Matthew C. Perry. It was the latter who commanded at the siege and capture of Vera Cruz, which insted three days. After the capture of Vera Cruz Mr. Ritter re turned to New-York City. He was soon afterward appointed gunner of the United States frigate Constitution, which, under its pet name "Ironsides," won such distinction in the War of 1812. Gunner Ritter had complete charge of the fifty guns of the old ocean warrior, twenty guns on the spar deck and thirty guns on the gun deck. Captain Quinn commanded her then, and the heroes of 1812 had long before died or retired from the service.

In 1835 Gunner Ritter was ordered to the He describes a little skirmish he had in the opium war between England and China as fol-facinto. He describes a little salinate the optum war between England and Crima as follows:

"Commodore Armstrong was aboard our ship, and when we reached Wan Poa be authorized the late Rear-Admiral Foote to bring down his forces from Canton. Foote was moving up the river, and when he approached the Bogue Fort the Chinese from the Chinese, and as they took no monded from the Chinese, and as they took no motice of it we began firing upon the forts after twenty-four hours. We kept it up until the five forts, standing in a half-circle, were captured. After driving out the Chinese we demolished four of the forts. Powder was laid to blow up the remaining fort, but as there was not enough for the purpose a boat was sent to the San Jacinto for more. During its absence the port train was prematurely lighted, and eighteen of our men who were in the fort lost their lives. A monument to their memory now stands in the Navy Yard."

Mr. Ritter was then attached to the Boston magazine until the outbreak of the Civil War, when he was ordered to the Ordinance Department at Cairo, under Commodore Foote. For seven years and eight months he had no more than twenty days leave. To him was intrusted the sale of the stores at Jefferson Barracks. His last cruise was on the side-wheeler Powhattan, in 187. Since going on the recired list the Captain has been a clerk in the Brooklyn Finance Department, as he clerk in the Brooklyn Finance Department, as he could not endure a life in which there was no daily occupation. He has been a war Democrat and a Sound Money Democrat. He lives with his daughter, at No. 287 Ryerson-st.

AN UNWISE MEASURE.

From The Jersey City Journal.

We hope that the Assemblymen of Hudson County will set their faces like a flint against the Police Justice bill, introduced by Assemblyman Hogan. This is a purely partisan measure. It has not an element of public necessity or policy it is contrary to the spirit of the Constitution. It is a recurrence to the old and had Democratic precedents and partisan practices which the amendments to the Constitution were adopted to pronioit. In the past this sort of performance always meant suicide to the party induiging in it. It is as un-Republican as it is injurious.

No man who has promised to support the Pall Election bill need allow himself to be deceived by the claim that consistency demands that he shall support the Hogan bill also. For what is called the Extension bill there can be urged grave considerations of public policy and economy that justly outweigh the objections made to it on partisan grounds. To now adopt a bill that is intended to preserve a partisan advantage in Jersey City, while placing the Democratic administration of Newark at a disadvantage, will simply prove that every man who votes for the Extension bill is a political hypocrite.

We ask the Republican Assemblymen from this city to call a halt on this sort of legislation. If the demands of Republican officeholders for it are indulged in, it simply means a "Bob" Davis government for a long term of years. From The Jersey City Journal.

From The Newark Advertiser.

The small lobby of Camden ministers at Trenton who have been disgracing their cloth by opposing the Marriage License bill have had no perceptible influence with members of the House, as the bill was passed last night with only one negative vote. The bill now goes to the Senate. A year ago the same bill passed the House with only four votes in opposition, but it was defeated in the Senate without reason and contrary to the interests of public morality. The lobby is said to have concentrated efforts on the Senators to bring about a like result, but surely the Senate will not again stand in the way of the reform of a scandalous evil.
